1 HOUSTON, TEXAS; FRIDAY, JANUARY 24, 2025; 12:59 P.M.

2 THE COURT: All right. Good afternoon. It is 3 Friday, January 24th. We're here for the 1:00 o'clock Docket, 4 the confirmation hearing in Case Number 24-90627, The 5 Container Store.

6 MS. HARPER: Good afternoon, Your Honor. Ashley
7 Harper, Tad Davidson, and Philip Guffy from Hunton Andrews
8 Kurth on behalf of the Debtors.

9 And from the Latham & Watkins team, Hugh Murtagh,
10 Jonathan Weichselbaum, Amy Quartarolo. And on GoToMeeting, 11 Ted Dillman.

12 THE COURT: Thank you.

13 MR. NGUYEN: Good afternoon, Your Honor. Ha Nguyen, 14 for the United States Trustee.

15 THE COURT: Thank you.

16 MR. PERSONS: Good afternoon, Your Honor. Charles 17 Persons of Paul Hastings for the Ad Hoc Group of Lenders and 18 DIP Lenders.

19 THE COURT: All right. Anyone wish to make an 20 appearance on the phone?

21 (No verbal response)

22 THE COURT: Any appearances on the phone?

23 (No verbal response)

24 MS. SCHRAGE: Hello, Your Honor. Patricia Schrage
25 for the Securities and Exchange Commission.

1 THE COURT: Good afternoon, Ms. Schrage.

2 All right. Who's going to take the lead?

3 MR. MURTAGH: That's me. Good afternoon, Your 4 Honor. Hugh Murtagh from Latham & Watkins on behalf of the 5 Debtors.

6 It is my privilege to appear this morning on behalf 7 of the Debtors for confirmation of the plan and a pleasure to 8 be in front of Your Honor for the first time. Thank you to 9 you and your staff for accommodating us today and over the 10 course of the last five or six weeks.

11 I would also like to take a minute at the outset to 12 thank the company's many creditors, stakeholders, their 13 counsel and advisor, some of whom are here today, and the U.S.
14 Trustee for working with us over the past several weeks to 15 resolve the vast majority of the comments and objections that 16 were raised on the plan and other issues along the way.

17 As of today, Your Honor, there are two outstanding 18 objections to the plan, one from the Office of the United 19 States Trustee and one from the SEC, both relating to the 20 third-party releases, and we'll come to those.

21 As we'll discuss in some detail, we're very pleased
22 to be seeking confirmation of the prepackaged Chapter 11 cases 23 that substantially de-leverage the Debtors' balance sheet and 24 that received unanimous support from all voting closes -- or 25 the sole voting class in these cases.

1 As I just said, Your Honor, we have unanimous 2 support from the sole voting class. We've resolved every 3 objection, other than the UST and the SEC, with regard to the 4 third-party releases.

5 And we have a plan to confirm that substantially de-6 levers the company by reducing its total funded debt by 7 approximately $88 million, through equitization of a 8 significant portion of the pre-petition term loan claims, 9 while still paying all unsecured creditors in full in the 10 ordinary course. All vendors will be paid or otherwise 11 satisfied in full and over 3,800 jobs will be preserved. And 12 all of that is a testament to the hard work of the 13 stakeholders and the professionals in this case and we think 14 to the fairness of the plan. So we're very encouraged and 15 happy to be here, Your Honor.

16 If I could also make a few introductions:

17 First, as Ms. Harper said, I'm joined by Ms.
18 Quartarolo and Mr. Weichselbaum from Latham.

19 We're joined in the courthouse by Mr. Chad Coben, 20 who is the Debtors' chief restructuring officer -- Chief 21 Restructuring Officer. And he has submitted a declaration in 22 support of confirmation, which is at Docket 162.

23 Mr. Adam Dunayer is also here, managing director in 24 the financial restructuring group at Houlihan Lokey, the 25 Debtors' financial advisor. He submitted a declaration in 1 support of confirmation, which can be found at Docket 163.

2 And finally, importantly, we're joined virtually by 3 Darlene Calderon, who is a Director of Corporate Restructuring 4 at the Debtors' claims and noticing agent Verita. She 5 submitted a declaration in support of confirmation, which can 6 be found at Docket 164.

7 Notably, Your Honor, Ms. Calderon also has prepared 8 and just recently, within the last hour, submitted a 9 supplemental declaration in support of confirmation, which I
10 believe is at Docket 179. Your Honor, that brief declaration 11 sets forth some factual matters or additional detail on the 12 noticing and that -- and opt-outs that were received. And I
13 expect Your Honor has not had an opportunity to review it yet, 14 but I'd be happy to pass it up if it would be helpful.

15 THE COURT: I can find it.

16 MR. MURTAGH: Okay. Let me make sure that I have a 17 copy in front of me, Your Honor. I don't know how I lost that 18 on the way to the podium, but I've got another one now.

19 (Laughter)

20 MR. MURTAGH: Okay.

21 THE COURT: Give me a minute.

22 MR. MURTAGH: Those are the declarants or the 23 potential witnesses in support to offer evidence.

24 Your Honor, if it's acceptable to you, I would 25 propose to start by introducing the declarations, subject to

1 cross-examination, if there's no objections; and then briefly
2 turning to adequacy of the Disclosure Statement, which is 3 technically a matter before Your Honor today; and then to turn 4 to the plan, and very briefly, Your Honor, really, with 5 everything, except to the expected argument over the third-6 party releases.

7 THE COURT: Okay. So what -- the supplemental 8 declaration at 179, let me jut review it.

9 MR. MURTAGH: Yes, Your Honor.

10 (Pause in proceedings)

11 THE COURT: Okay.

12 MR. MURTAGH: So, Your Honor, that brings a total of 13 four declaration. I'll step through them.

14 The first declaration we would propose to submit is 15 the declaration of Chad Coben in support of confirmation, and 16 that's at Docket Number 162.

17 THE COURT: All right. Does anyone object to the 18 admission of the declaration of Mr. Coben? It is in the 19 Debtors' witness and exhibit list, Docket Number 171-20.

20 (No verbal response)

21 THE COURT: All right. No objections. It will be 22 admitted.

23 (Debtors' Exhibit ECF 171-20 received in evidence)

24 THE COURT: And we'll reserve cross-examination 25 until all of them are considered.

1 MR. MURTAGH: Understood.

2 The second is the declaration of Adam Dunayer in 3 support confirmation. As I said, Mr. Dunayer is here in the 4 courtroom. It's Docket Number 163.

5 THE COURT: All right. Does anyone oppose the 6 admission of the declaration of Mr. Adam Dunayer as his direct 7 testimony found at Docket 171-21?

8 (No verbal response)

9 THE COURT: All right. Hearing no objections, it's 10 admitted.

11 (Debtors' Exhibit ECF 171-21 received in evidence)

12 THE COURT: And we'll reserve on cross-examination.

13 MR. MURTAGH: The third, Your Honor, is the first 14 declaration of Ms. Calderon, regarding solicitation of votes 15 and tabulation of ballots cast on the prepackaged joint plan, 16 and that's Docket Number 164.

17 THE COURT: All right. Does anyone object to the 18 admission as direct evidence, the declaration of mister -- of 19 Ms. Darlene Calderon at Docket Number 171-19?

20 (No verbal response)

21 THE COURT: All right. Hearing none, we will admit 22 that.

23 (Debtors' Exhibit ECF 171-19 received in evidence)

24 MR. MURTAGH: Your Honor, I believe that that Docket 25 number is -- for the original declaration, is 164.

1 THE COURT: Yeah, it's 164. But on the witness and 2 exhibit --

3 MR. MURTAGH: Witness --

4 THE COURT: -- list --

5 MR. MURTAGH: I'm sorry.

6 THE COURT: -- it's 171-19.

7 MR. MURTAGH: Understood.

8 And the final, Your Honor, is the one we were just 9 talking about, it's the supplemental declaration of Ms.
10 Calderon, it's Docket 179. It -- as I said -- and Your Honor
11 had, I know, only a moment to review it, but it was intended 12 to provide additional detail that the Office of the United 13 States Trustee had asked for. And I -- my understanding is 14 that, with the submission of this declaration, the office is 15 happy with the completeness of the factual record and will not 16 be seeking to cross-examine. But obviously, the Office of the 17 U.S. Trustee can speak for itself on that point. It's Docket
18 Number 179.

19 THE COURT: All right. Does anyone object to the 20 declaration of miss -- the supplemental declaration of Ms.
21 Darlene Calderon found at Docket Number 179?

22 (No verbal response)

23 THE COURT: All right. That will be admitted.

24 (Debtors' Exhibit ECF 179 received in evidence)

25 THE COURT: All right. Does anyone wish to 1 cross-examine Ms. Calderon, Mr. Coben, or Mr. Dunayer?

2 (No verbal response)

3 THE COURT: Okay. Hearing none, I will allow that 4 testimony in.

5 Go ahead.

6 MR. MURTAGH: Thank you, Your Honor.

7 Let me touch very briefly on adequacy of the 8 Disclosure Statement.

9 Your Honor, as you know, there was one voting class 10 here. Everybody in that class voted in favor of the plan. We 11 have not received any objections, concerns, comments, or 12 otherwise on the Disclosure Statement or the adequacy thereof.

13 And unless Your Honor has questions about the 14 Disclosure Statement at this point, we would ask the Court to 15 approve the Disclosure Statement on a final basis.

16 THE COURT: All right. Does anyone wish to be heard 17 with respect to the approval of the Disclosure Statement on a 18 final basis?

19 (No verbal response)

20 THE COURT: All right. Hearing none.

21 I have reviewed the Disclosure Statement in 22 connection with both preparation for this hearing, as well as 23 at the time that I entered the initial order. And based on my 24 reading and based on the record in the case and the fact that 25 there have been no objections filed, I find that the

1 Disclosure Statement has adequate information, so it is 2 approved.

3 MR. MURTAGH: Thank you, Your Honor.

4 Then turning to the main event, the plan.

5 Your Honor, six weeks ago, on December 21st, we 6 really began this brief journey with a transition services 7 agreement that was executed by holders over 90 percent of the 8 outstanding principal amount of term loans and the consenting
9 stockholder, which is LGP in this case.

10 On the same day, we began solicitation of the term 11 loan holders on the plan.

12 On the 22nd, we filed our petitions.

13 And of course, on the 23rd, we were before Your 14 Honor for the first-day hearing.

15 Since that time, things have gone remarkably 16 smoothly up to today, and I -- hopefully, today will be no 17 different.

18 As Your Honor knows, we had no objections to the 19 final orders or the relief on a final basis on a couple of 20 motions that were left open on an interim basis, and those 21 final orders were entered on January 16th.

22 Pursuant to the solicitation procedures order, the 23 voting opt-out deadline and the plan and Disclosure Statement 24 objection deadline were set for the 21st of this month.

25 As I noted at the outset, we received only two

1 objections, two -- sorry -- two formal objections that are 2 unresolved from the UST and the SEC. We did receive a filed 3 objection from one landlord whose concerns we have been able 4 to resolve by modifications to the proposed order.

5 And that brings us to today, Your Honor.

6 As Your Honor is well aware, I'm sure, the plan 7 classes the claimants to eight classes, seven of which are 8 non-voting classes.

9 Class 1, which is other secured claims; Class 2, 10 which is ABL claims; and Class 4, which is general unsecured
11 claims, are unimpaired and are not voting.

12 Class 3, the pre-petition loan claims, is the voting 13 class. They voted unanimously in favor.

14 Classes 5, subordinated claims, and Class 8, equity 15 interests, are not recovering and are deemed to reject the 16 plan.

17 And Classes 6 and 7 are intercompany claims and 18 intercompany interests, respectively, which are either deemed 19 to accept or reject, as applicable.

20 Just to highlight a few key aspects of the plan and 21 the transactions contemplated thereunder:

22 As I noted at the outset, the plan and the related 23 transaction documents de-lever the company by about $88
24 million by equitizing a substantial portion of the term loans.

25 The exit financing includes 40 million of new money

1 through the term loan DIP and a roll of the exit financing 2 with Eclipse Business Capital, which we believe will give the 3 Debtors a solid footing as reorganized entities.

4 Again, happy to report and reiterate that all 5 general unsecureds are unimpaired.

6 And Your Honor, virtually all, with very, very 7 limited exceptions, all executory contracts and unexpired 8 leases are being assumed.

9 Finally, really the only, I think, sticking point 10 that's left, subject to hearing anybody else who may want to 11 be heard, is the third-party releases, which is obviously an 12 issue Your Honor is familiar with, and I will present an 13 argument on that. And obviously, we'll hear from the trustee
14 and the SEC.

15 But unless Your Honor has questions about other 16 aspects of the plan that are, I don't believe in dispute, I 17 would move past those and just focus on the releases.

18 THE COURT: Okay. Does anyone else wish to be heard 19 on anything other than the issues raised by the U.S. Trustee
20 and the SEC?

21 (No verbal response)

22 THE COURT: Let me -- just one question. The U.S.
23 Trustee raised an issue regarding the fourteen-day stay. I
24 believe Mr. Coben addressed that in his declaration. Is there 25 any further testimony on that?

1 MR. MURTAGH: No, Your Honor, there's no further 2 evidence to present on it. I'm happy to speak to it as an 3 argument point, if you would like me to.

4 THE COURT: Yeah, that would be -- that would be 5 fine.

6 MR. MURTAGH: I think, as made clear in Mr. Coben's 7 declaration, the immediate effectiveness or near immediate 8 effectiveness of the plan is absolutely critical as a business 9 matter. I did not mention it, Your Honor, but the hope is to 10 be fully effective on this plan, if not Monday, Monday or 11 Tuesday of next week.

12 This is an important company, but a company that,
13 Your Honor, is not that big, in terms of capital structure.
14 And the fees that are associated with every incremental day in 15 bankruptcy are actually meaningful to this company, quite 16 meaningful to the company and the stakeholders and the 17 creditors who are funding the exit.

18 We think it's, you know, absolutely routine here and 19 in other districts to waive that stay period to allow plans to 20 go effective, particularly given the -- a case like this and 21 the degree of consensus that we have around it.

22 So, unless Your Honor has specific questions about 23 it --

24 THE COURT: No, I don't have any questions.

25 MR. MURTAGH: Should I turn to the releases, Your

1 Honor?

2 THE COURT: It probably makes sense for the objector
3 to go first, and then you can respond.

4 So I don't know, Mr. Nguyen, whether you or Ms.
5 Schrage wants to go first.

6 MR. NGUYEN: I -- since I'm here, I volunteer to go
7 first, but if Ms. Schrage wants to go first, I'm happy to cede 8 the podium.

9 THE COURT: Come on up.

10 MR. NGUYEN: All right. Your Honor, Ha Nguyen for 11 the United States Trustee.

12 Thank you for the opportunity to address the Court 13 with our objection. I've done many of these objections in 14 front of Judge Lopez, I think he's a little bit tired of me 15 telling him why I think Robertshaw was wrongly decided. But 16 this is my first time in front of you with this objection, so 17 I look forward to our conversation on the third-party release, 18 on this issue.

19 As Your Honor knows, and we filed a brief -- I know
20 you heard from Ms. Herish from our Dallas office this morning
21 -- the Supreme Court in Purdue held that there is really no 22 basis for non-consensual third-party releases. And the 23 Supreme Court really left it up to Your Honor and Bankruptcy 24 Courts like Judge Lopez and other judges around the country to 25 determine what exactly is consent, and really leave it up to 1 this Court to resolve the consent issue.

2 As Your Honor knows, the United States Trustee takes 3 the position that the opt-out mechanism used in this case
4 renders the third-party releases in the plan non-consensual.

5 As the Court is aware, courts all around the country
6 have been revisiting this issue since Purdue. Judge Lopez 7 issued his decision in Robertshaw. Courts in the Northern 8 District of Texas, particularly in Ebix and Eiger, Judge 9 Everett has a decision out there. Judge Jernigan in Eiger had 10 a decision. There are decisions in Florida in the Red Lobster 11 cases. There's a decision in Delaware by Judge Goldblatt in 12 the Smallhold case, where he went 180 from his Arsenal case, 13 which Judge Lopez cites in his Robertshaw decision.

14 THE COURT: There was a decision today by Judge 15 Stickles.

16 MR. NGUYEN: Yes, and that was the Lumio, one of the 17 Lumio cases.

18 THE COURT: Right.

19 MR. NGUYEN: I think that was early. But -- and 20 I've (indiscernible), so I think we're all really going, in 21 terms of the forefront of everything that's been going on.
22 It's coming really fast.

23 But Judge, in terms of all these views -- I know
24 Your Honor expressed a view in Independent Driller Contractors
25 [sic], and I believe it was a media --

1 THE COURT: Digital Media.

2 MR. NGUYEN: Digital Media. Thank you.

3 But Your Honor, I would urge you to adopt the views 4 of Judge Everett in Ebix and Judge Goldblatt in Smallhold.
5 And really, the reasoning is straightforward. You know, state 6 contract laws should really apply when you're looking at 7 consent.

8 And also, in examining the default forfeiture 9 theory, when someone gets notice of something, what happens if 10 they don't act. Under -- in Smallhold, Judge Goldblatt said 11 you can't really default them because you can't find that 12 remedy anywhere in the Bankruptcy Code. And he uses like a 13 five-dollar donation to the CEO's college fund as like there's 14 no way you can default somebody if you put that provision in 15 there. But he thinks that third-party releases are very 16 similar, in terms of the forfeiture theory.

17 One case that really stands out to me -- and I think 18 we cite it our brief -- is -- and I'm going to butcher the 19 name -- is Norcia. It's a case where -- and it's not a 20 bankruptcy case; it's a Ninth Circuit case, where a consumer
21 bought a Samsung phone from a Verizon store. The customer 22 walked in there, signed a customer agreement with Verizon, 23 took the Samsung phone home and, within the Samsung phone,
24 there was a product warranty. And within that product 25 warranty, it says, you know, if you don't write to us within

1 30 days or if you don't call this phone number within 30 days, 2 you are consenting to arbitrate any claims that you may have 3 with Samsung. I'm not entirely sure what happened with the 4 phone, but the customer eventually sued Samsung. And Samsung
5 said hey, you know, you need an arbiter, you can't sue us.

6 The Ninth Circuit took it up, and one of the things
7 they said was that customer agreement with the Verizon Store
8 and the customer, that has nothing to do with Samsung, Samsung 9 was just the provider of the phone, that was a contract, very 10 similar to here, Debtor and their creditors. We're not 11 talking about third parties. So the Ninth Circuit said that 12 customer agreement, it's between two parties, you can't really 13 bring in a third party like Samsung.

14 And then so Samsung said well, there was consent to 15 arbitrate under this clear and conspicuous warning that we had 16 on our product's label with the warranty. The Ninth Circuit 17 said well, really, there's no federal law that we can look to, 18 to determine whether there was consent there. So they looked 19 at contract law under the State of California. And really, it 20 comes back to whether failing to act, whether having silence
21 when there is something that's warning you within a product
22 label can you deem that as consent. And the Ninth Circuit 23 really looked at that and said well, you know, silence can't 24 be consent, it's basically contract law, there was no contract
25 there. So, you know, those arbitration agreement did not --

1 didn't apply.

2 You know, this is entirely applicable to the 3 contracts of a Chapter 11 case. You know, the nonDebtor
4 released parties are really not signatories to this Chapter 11 5 plan. As you hear from the Debtor, this is really about the 6 Class 3, it's really about a de-leveraging of the term notes.

7 And really, the Bankruptcy Code itself provides that 8 a plan is specifically to deal with how a Debtor will pay its 9 creditors. It's not really a vehicle for claims to be 10 resolved by nonDebtor. That's really not the purpose of the 11 Bankruptcy Code.

12 Judge, we have a lot more arguments and cites and 13 law in the brief, so I won't belabor the point. But again, I 14 would urge you to take a look at what Judge Everett said in 15 Ebix, look at what Judge Goldblatt said in --

16 THE COURT: Smallhold.

17 MR. NGUYEN: -- Smallhold. Thank you.

18 And Judge, if those two judges do not convince you,
19 I think there's a third way to look at this and -- well, a 20 second way to look at this is -- well, the first way to look 21 at it is the U.S. Trustee thinks opt-out is the -- never 22 permissible, you can't procure consent.

23 But there's another way. And I would point you to 24 what Judge Stickles did in Lumio and what Judge Jernigan did 25 in Eiger. Although the results were different, I think Your

1 Honor can apply it to this case.

2 In Lumio, Judge Stickles looked at the facts of the 3 case and said -- you know, she was very skeptical that silence 4 would mean consent when the general unsecured creditors were 5 not entitled to vote and they were not entitled to any 6 recovery. So Judge Stickles, again, really examined the facts
7 of the case and said she would not allow the opt-out in a case 8 where these creditors are getting nothing and you're going to 9 send this out and expect them to return it, or else they're 10 going to be binded [sic] by the third-party release.

11 Judge Jernigan approved the use of the opt-out in 12 Eiger Pharmaceutical. But one of the things that she said at 13 the hearing was that, you know, Debtors shouldn't always come 14 in here and assume that these opt-out, it's going to be 15 approved.

16 So, really, it brings this view that, you know, it's 17 not a never opt-out or an always opt-out, but maybe let's take 18 a look at the facts of the case, and it really depends on, you 19 know, the process and the type of creditors you have and the 20 purpose of the plan.

21 Judge, I know you approved the opt-outs in the past, 22 but I really don't think it binds your hands with this 23 specific case. So, Judge, the opt-out in this case is not 24 really effective. It's similar to like Lumio, and it 25 shouldn't be used in this case.

1 First, Your Honor, I've asked for a declaration from 2 Verita, and that's the supplemental declaration. And one of 3 the things you notice on there is about 16,968 opt-outs were 4 sent out. And this is where these opt-outs were sent out to a 5 non-voting class. So you either have equity, that's getting 6 wiped, or you get creditors that are unimpaired and they're 7 riding through the bankruptcy.

8 Again, this is about de-leveraging the company as to 9 Class 3. These other creditors are just going along with the 10 bankruptcy case. They're not getting a recovery. They're not 11 -- really not involved in the case, they're just --

12 THE COURT: Well --

13 MR. NGUYEN: -- riding through.

14 THE COURT: -- the creditors here are getting a 15 hundred cents on the dollar.

16 MR. NGUYEN: That's true. But they're -- so they're 17 really riding through, based on --

18 THE COURT: Yeah. So it's not like --

19 MR. NGUYEN: The unimpaired is the point, Your 20 Honor. But the thing is the crux of the case is the de-
21 leveraging of the Class 3. That's why -- primarily why 22 they're here.

23 But in terms of just the vote records and the opt-24 out, 16,968 opt-outs were sent; 165 opt-outs were returned.
25 I'm doing some quick lawyer math, that's a little bit under 1

1 percent, very close to 1 percent. I rounded up, I give them 1 2 percent.

3 The Debtors, in their brief, talked about the 4 specific process as a way to determine whether releases are 5 consensual. I believe they cite this -- the case from Energy
6 & Exploration Partners and they quote. Quote:

7 "-- notice has gone out, parties have actually 8 gotten it, they've had the opportunity to look at it, and the 9 disclosure is adequate so that they can actually understand 10 what they're being asked to do and the options that they're 11 being given."

12 Here, it's a little bit difficult for me to apply it 13 to the facts of this case when you get 99 percent of the opt-14 outs not returning. People who received the notice in the 15 mail did not return the form. Are we really going to say that 16 99 percent of these holders of claims affirmatively consented 17 to give releases to nonDebtor third parties, when, really,
18 they're riding through and they're not part of this Class 3 19 and they're not entitled to vote? And even one class is 20 getting entirely wiped out, the equity class. And you're 21 saying hey, we're wiping out your entire equity, and by the 22 way, you're also granting all these third-party releases to 23 these people. I think that's inappropriate for a case like 24 this, where you're really trying to de-leverage the company 25 and make sure the Class 3 is restructured. So applying that

1 other view that Judge Jernigan and Judge Stickles, look to the 2 facts of this case.

3 I just really -- I remember the days where -- and it 4 hasn't been so long ago because I haven't been practicing that 5 long. But you know, third-party releases was kind of a rare
6 thing. You know? It brings certain claims. But now it's par 7 the course. It would be mis -- malpractice for these 8 attorneys not to ask for it in a case like this because every 9 single case has a third-party release.

10 But for this case, where you're actually just trying 11 to de-leverage and just trying to have somewhat of a balance
12 sheet restructure, I just don't think it's appropriate, 13 especially when everyone is unimpaired and riding through and 14 one class is getting extinguished, and that's the Class 5 15 equity.

16 Lastly, Judge, I just want to talk about the 17 "related party" definition that we raised in our objection. I 18 know the Debtor narrowed the definition to some agency or 19 derivative claim based on the amended plan. But I really 20 don't think that resolved the problem in our objection.

21 These related parties are still releasing something 22 against a third party; whether it's agency or derivative 23 claim, they're still releasing something. So, if you're 24 releasing something, at a minimum, you need notice. The 25 record is clear that the related parties were not provided

1 notice and they were not given the opt-out form and did not 2 consent to the third-party releases.

3 So, if the Court disagrees with all I said about the 4 opt-out, and you can deem consent under the opt-out, I would 5 simply ask the Court to just strike the related parties 6 because, simply, due process requires that these related 7 parties who are giving a release, although it's a narrow 8 release, they still have an opportunity to have notice and an 9 opportunity to object, which didn't happen here for the 10 related party.

11 So, Your Honor, for the reasons stated in our 12 objection and the arguments presented here today, we ask that 13 confirmation be denied unless the third-party release is 14 revised with an opt-in or some sort of affirmative consent.
15 Thank you, Your Honor.

16 THE COURT: Thank you.

17 All right. Ms. Schrage?

18 MS. SCHRAGE: Yes, Your Honor. Hi. Can you hear me 19 okay?

20 THE COURT: I can hear you fine. Thank you so much.

21 MS. SCHRAGE: Okay. Great. Okay. So, Your Honor, 22 Patricia Schrage for the Securities and Exchange Commission.
23 This is also my first time before you, so I appreciate the 24 opportunity to allow us to come into court, especially 25 virtually. Appreciate that. Thank you, Your Honor.

1 THE COURT: You're welcome.

2 MS. SCHRAGE: So the --

3 THE COURT: Any time.

4 MS. SCHRAGE: The U.S. Trustee -- thank you. Thank 5 you very much.

6 So the U.S. Trustee, they go through, you know, a 7 lot of the points, and the SEC agrees with the points that the 8 U.S. Trustee made today and in their papers.

9 And those points are -- particularly apply to the 10 non-voting classes. Those are the ones that are deemed to 11 reject the plan, the public shareholders, the subordinated 12 claimants. And so, Your Honor, in the SEC's view, the 13 Debtors' plan, as has been said in the objection and by the 14 U.S. Trustee, contains, in our view, a non-consensual third-15 party release, which is prohibited under Purdue.

16 So, Your Honor, specifically, the release is non-17 consensual as it applies to those public shareholders and 18 subordinated claimants because those classes are receiving no 19 consideration, they're not voting on the plan, and they're 20 deemed to reject the plan. There is simply no incentive for 21 the shareholders and the subordinated claimants to grant the 22 third-party release. And in these circumstances, their 23 failure to return that opt-out form, is, in our view, 24 insufficient evidence of consent of a third-party release.

25 It's the SEC's position that, in order to bind these

1 shareholders and the subordinated creditors to that release, 2 that you need a showing of affirmative consent. Without the 3 affirmative consent, respectfully, they (indiscernible) on 4 whether there was consent.

5 Specifically in these case -- in this case, the 6 facts show they need affirmative consent. The Container Store
7 is a public company. And according to the Debtors' voting 8 declaration, only a small handful of the shareholders 9 responded.

10 In the most recent declaration that was filed, of 11 over thirty eight -- of over 3,800 forms that were sent out, 12 only 15 came back from the Class 8 equity holders. That is a 13 very small amount. And of those 15, only 9 actually opted 14 out. So there would be remaining 6. And apparently, those 6 15 didn't opt out. There were also 297 forms returned. So it's 16 unclear, you know, what group those return forms came from.

17 But what that does tell us is that, you know, 18 shareholders may not be getting the form. The shareholders 19 rely on nominees to get the forms and have the forms sent to 20 them.

21 And you know -- and the other thing is it doesn't 22 tell us, you know, because there was that small number that 23 were returned, but the ones that returned the forms and didn't 24 check the box, there's also (indiscernible) it appears that 25 they didn't know why they were even receiving the form. If

1 they did, they likely would have either not returned it or 2 checked the box.

3 So, Your Honor, we're not sure how comprehensive the 4 service was. We do know the nominees were served, that's 5 clear from their papers. And the certificate of service does 6 appear to show that forms were mailed to some of the 7 beneficial holders. It doesn't appear and it's unlikely that 8 they would have been to all. We do know those nominees were 9 served.

10 And Your Honor, just also, you know, I understand 11 that the U.S. Trustee did make the point about the opt-in 12 versus the opt-out. But it is our view that the only way to 13 truly know that these shareholders were served and if they 14 consented was to include an opt-in mechanisms, versus an opt-15 out mechanism.

16 You know, Purdue did change the legal landscape in 17 this regard, and it's cited in our objection. There were 18 courts post-Purdue that are requiring a showing of affirmative 19 consent to bind parties to the third-party releases. And 20 that's particularly (indiscernible) with respect to the 21 shareholders, who, in many cases, are deemed to -- are not 22 getting any consideration and are deemed to reject the plan.

23 Your Honor, so the Bankruptcy Code does not 24 authorize the nonDebtor third-party releases without the 25 consent of the affected claimant and there is no federal law

1 regarding consent. As discussed in our objection and in the 2 U.S. Trustee's brief, courts have (indiscernible) basic 3 contract principles when considering whether a release is 4 consensual. And under the basic contract law, a creditor's 5 filing is generally not sufficient with regard to consent.

6 In addition, some of the cases, including the recent 7 case from the district in Robertshaw, have referenced the use 8 of the opt-outs in the class action support opt-outs in the 9 Chapter 11 plan process. However, as we state in our 10 objection, that opt-out mechanism in class actions is 11 different from the mechanism used in the Chapter 11 plan 12 process, and that is because, in a class action, there are 13 additional protection -- protections which are not available 14 here.

15 And Your Honor, you know, as the U.S. Trustee had 16 stated earlier and went through quite a few of the cases, you
17 know, the case law on this point is developing. And courts 18 post-Purdue are reconsidering how to look at consent and how 19 consent can be applied. So, you know, are aware that just, 20 you know, a week or so ago, in IDC, in Independence -- well, 21 I'll just call it "IDC" for now -- that Your Honor did approve 22 that opt-out mechanism, and other cases in this district have, 23 as well.

24 You know, the SEC's view is that, on these facts, 25 the Court can come to a different conclusion. And we do

1 request that the Court delete the release or amend the plan to 2 carve out the shareholders and the subordinated claimants or 3 require an opt-in. Thank you, Your Honor.

4 THE COURT: Thank you. All right.

5 MR. MURTAGH: For the record again, Your Honor, it's 6 Hugh Murtagh from Latham & Watkins on behalf of the Debtors.

7 I'll address both objections with the same argument.
8 I think they basically go to the same points, Your Honor.

9 So just taking a small step back, let's start with 10 what we all agree on. Yes, Your Honor, Purdue holds that non-11 consensual third-party releases are not permitted under the 12 Code. As Your Honor recently recognized in Independence
13 Contract Drilling, that was already the law in the Fifth 14 Circuit. So, in other words, nothing has changed here.
15 Third-party releases were -- non-consensual third-party 16 releases were and remain prohibited.

17 However, we all also agree that, long before Purdue 18 and in a substantial number of cases after Purdue, courts in 19 this district have approved opt-out third-party releases 20 because a release obtained through a properly noticed and 21 documented opt-out mechanism is a consensual release.

22 Taking only some of the post-Purdue cases, both Your 23 Honor and Judge Lopez have held, both in public and private 24 company cases, that a proper opt-out mechanism is a sufficient 25 basis for a consensual third-party release. Those cases

1 included:

2 Independence Contract Drilling, which Your Honor
3 confirmed on January 9th;

4 Vroom, Inc., another public company case that Judge
5 Lopez confirmed on January 8th;

6 And also Robertshaw, Your Honor, which the objectors
7 referenced, reported at 662 B.R. 300, in which Judge Lopez
8 also approved opt-out releases and held, quote:

9 "There is nothing improper with an opt-out feature 10 for consensual third-party releases in a Chapter 11 plan. And 11 what constitutes consent, including opt-out features and 12 deemed consent for not opting out, has long been settled in 13 this District. Hundreds of Chapter 11 cases have been 14 confirmed in this District with consensual third-party
15 releases with an opt-out. And, again, Purdue did not change 16 the law in this Circuit."

17 So, Your Honor, this is common ground. It's the 18 well-established, unbroken precedent in this district, both 19 before and after Purdue, that a properly accomplished opt-out 20 released is consensual and permissible. And I'm aware that's 21 not the practice in every district, or at least uniformly in 22 certain other districts. And those decisions taking another 23 tact are thoughtful, but Your Honor, we disagree with them and 24 it's not been the practice in this court.

25 There is no basis to assume that the only way to

1 sufficiently manifest consent is on basic non-judicial 2 contract principles. As this Court and I think Judge Lopez 3 have referenced, there is federal court practice that deems 4 consent based on a proper process, including, but not limited 5 to class actions.

6 And what the process does here is not just bless 7 silence. It blesses a decision. If it is done properly, an 8 opt-out mechanism puts a decision in front of a creditor or 9 stakeholder whether they want to grant the release or not.
10 And that stakeholder is told in clear and conspicuous language
11 how to do it. And the creditor's or interest holder's 12 decision should be respected.

13 And there's no evidence in the record as to why 14 anyone who received an opt-out form did not return it. And to 15 speculate it's because they didn't understand it or because 16 they wanted to opt out, but it was too burdensome, or anything 17 else is purely speculation.

18 The only evidence we have, Your Honor, the 19 uncontroverted evidence is the four declarations before Your 20 Honor, and that includes robust evidence, which I'll come to, 21 about the extent of the noticing and the process that was 22 followed to put that decision in front of creditors and 23 interest holders, so that they could make a decision.

24 This isn't a contract, it's not an adhesion 25 contract, where you bought something you needed and you just

1 have to deal with what the contract says or there was a third 2 party's contract buried inside a box. This is something that 3 is put conspicuously and purposefully, in bold capital 4 letters, in front of these creditors and interest holders, to 5 give them an opportunity to make the decision. And we should 6 respect the decision that is manifested by the process, 7 whether they returned an opt-out or decided not to return it
8 and not opt out. And I think, as Your Honor has made clear, 9 that's the view in this district.

10 And the question becomes, then:

11 A, was the opt-out process reasonable and effective?

12 And B, are the releases narrowly tailored and core 13 to the proceedings?

14 So let's turn to those facts because I agree with 15 the objectors that the facts are important, and these are the 16 important facts:

17 So, first, as to process, Your Honor, as set forth
18 in the declarations of Ms. Calderon, the Debtors served 19 solicitation packages with a release opt-out election on the 20 only voting class on December 21st.

21 The Debtors served notices of non-voting status and 22 release opt-out forms on all other classes on or before 23 December 27th.

24 As is set forth in the declarations, sufficient 25 forms were sent to nominees to forward to beneficial holders,

1 and the solicitation procedures order directed nominees to 2 make such forwarding happen.

3 In all cases, the notice and opt-out materials
4 conspicuously described the nature of the release, included 5 all of the operative release language from the plan, and 6 explained the consequences of not returning the completed opt-7 out form.

8 Creditors and interest holders were given until 9 January 21st to make an election by mail, overnight courier, 10 hand-delivery, or electronic submission via the case website.

11 As of today, Your Honor, including some forms that 12 were received after the deadline and as the objectors noted, 13 we received -- I believe, if you count -- if you compare it to 14 the total number that went out, it may be around one percent, 15 but several -- a couple hundred were returned, executed, and 16 they were returned executed across classes, including other 17 secured claims, ABL claims, general unsecured claims, and 18 existing equity interests.

19 So, again, Your Honor, to return to what that 20 evidence shows, is that the noticing that was supposed to 21 happen happened. Creditors and interest holders who were 22 supposed to get notices got them. There is no evidence to the 23 contrary. And creditors and interest holders who wanted to 24 opt out returned opt-out forms. That's the only evidence 25 before this Court, is that the process works for people who

1 chose to opt out. They knew how to do it if they were in 2 secured claims, ABL claims, unsecured claims, or even equity 3 interests recover nothing, whether they were individuals or 4 whether they were entities.

5 We cannot speculate as to why others made a decision 6 not to opt out. But consistent with the practice in this 7 district, the process afforded that opportunity, a decision
8 was made not to opt out, and it should be respected. Anything 9 else is just speculation about why a creditor or interests 10 holder who didn't return form didn't return a form. It should 11 be viewed as it is intended to be viewed, as it is explained 12 to the creditor, who should be deemed to understand it, that 13 not opting out means you're granting the release.

14 And to shortcut the point, Your Honor, the Debtors 15 followed substantially the same process followed in 16 Independence Contract Drilling and Vroom and Robertshaw and 17 other cases noted in our briefing, and we should see the same 18 result here, Your Honor. This was a fair and effective opt-19 out process for consensual releases.

20 I -- I'll move on to tailoring, Your Honor, and 21 pause briefly on injunction. But let me stop there in case 22 Your Honor has questions on the core point.

23 THE COURT: Nope.

24 MR. MURTAGH: So, as to tailoring, Your Honor, just 25 briefly. The third-party releases are narrowly tailored. The

1 releases themselves release only claims related to the Debtors 2 and these cases, just as in all of the precedent cases we've 3 been discussing.

4 As set forth in Mr. Coben's declaration, 5 specifically at Paragraph 56, the third-party releases were a 6 core consideration among the parties to the TSA, instrumental 7 in development of the plan, and critical to gaining and 8 growing support for the plan and the cases from released
9 parties. Like most everything here, Your Honor, that evidence 10 is also unchallenged. So the releases are necessary and 11 appropriately tailored.

12 Finally, Your Honor, and as briefly covered in 13 Independence Contract Drilling, the injunction follows the 14 release. Injunctions are appropriate in connection with 15 third-party releases under Fifth Circuit law. And again, Your 16 Honor, the evidence supports that the injunction is a 17 necessary complement to the releases, as set forth in Mr.
18 Coben's declaration at Paragraphs 60 to 62.

19 And then the final point on the related party
20 releases that the Office of the United States Trustee raised.
21 Your Honor, the structure of the releases, as modified -- 22 which is intended as a clarification -- is that related 23 parties are only granting releases to the extent that the 24 primary releasing party could be forced to grant the release
25 on behalf of the related party through agency principles. So

1 the power to grant the release is vested in the releasing 2 party, and the release is only effective to that extent as to 3 the related party or, similarly, for a derivative claim that 4 is, itself, released by the direct claimant's release. So 5 there's nothing that is being taken from a related party that 6 is not already fully vested in the hands of the releasing 7 party.

8 THE COURT: Who received notice.

9 MR. MURTAGH: Correct, correct.

10 So, in sum, Your Honor, the third-party releases are 11 consensual and should be approved together with their 12 accompanying injunction.

13 That's all I have on the releases, Your Honor. I 14 did have on or two housekeeping points. But before I come to 15 that, let me pause and see if Your Honor has any questions.

16 THE COURT: No questions.

17 MR. MURTAGH: So, just in terms of housekeeping, 18 Your Honor, for completeness of the record, in addition to the 19 declarations already admitted into evidence as Docket Numbers 20 171-19, 171-20, 171-21, and 179, we also would offer into 21 evidence the remaining items referenced on the witness and 22 exhibit list, which are found at Docket Numbers 171-1 through 23 171-18.

24 THE COURT: All right. Does anyone have any 25 objection to the exhibits found at Documents Number 171-1

1 through 171-18?

2 And they include Mr. Coben's original declaration
3 for the Disclosure Statement, that's Exhibit Number 171-1.

4 171-2 is the Disclosure Statement.

5 171-3 are the financial projections.

6 171-4 is the liquidation analysis.

7 171-5 is the valuation analysis.

8 171-6 is the prepackaged joint plan.

9 171-7 is the certificate of service on the 10 solicitation dated December 23rd, 2024.

11 171-8 is the order scheduling the combined hearing.

12 And then 171-9 through 171-15 are the various 13 certificates of service and affidavits filed by the claims 14 agent in connection with the service of the plan.

15 And 171-16 is the first amended prepackaged plan.

16 And 171-17 is the redlines of the prepackaged plan 17 of the amended plan.

18 And 171-18 is notice of the filing of the first 19 amended prepackaged plan.

20 Any objections?

21 (No verbal response)

22 THE COURT: All right. Hearing none, they'll be 23 admitted.

24 (Debtors' Exhibits ECF 171-1 through 171-18 received in 25 evidence)

1 MR. MURTAGH: Thank you, Your Honor.

2 That concludes the Debtors' presentation, and we'd 3 respectfully request that the Court enter the order confirming 4 the plan found at Docket Number 177.

5 THE COURT: All right.

6 MR. MURTAGH: Thank you again.

7 THE COURT: Mr. Nguyen?

8 MR. NGUYEN: Nothing further, Your Honor. Thank 9 you.

10 THE COURT: Okay. Ms. Schrage?

11 MS. SCHRAGE: Nothing further, Your Honor. Thank 12 you.

13 THE COURT: Okay.

14 (Pause in proceedings)

15 THE COURT: Okay. Before the Court today is the 16 Debtors' hearing on confirmation of the first amended plan and 17 related matters.

18 With respect to all of the issues found in 1129-1 -- 19 and I will deal with the objection separately -- I find that 20 the -- number one, that I have jurisdiction; that confirmation 21 of the plan is a core matter; that, you know, the Court has an 22 independent obligation to review the plan, which I have done.
23 And I believe that, based on the uncontroverted evidence, the 24 plan meets all of the requirements of 1129 of the Bankruptcy 25 Code, in order to obtain confirmation. And that is based on,

1 not only the exhibits that were admitted, but also the 2 declarations of Mr. Coben, Mr. Dunayer, and the voting
3 declaration filed by Ms. Calderon.

4 So now let me turn to the objections raised by the 5 U.S. Trustee and the SEC.

6 So I want to -- and I do think that the facts
7 matter, and I do view every plan on the facts. There is no 8 set rule with respect to how third-party releases will be 9 treated. I think it is based on the facts and I do think that 10 facts matter.

11 And based on the evidence before me, what I have is 12 a situation of a -- if I look at the liquidation analysis, 13 this company would be hopelessly insolvent, the secured 14 creditor would receive pennies on the dollar. And but for the 15 negotiation that was had by the company in this charge of its 16 fiduciary obligations with its ad hoc group of creditors, we 17 have now reached a plan where the unsecured creditors are 18 getting a hundred cents on the dollar; the ABL was paid off, 19 they got a hundred cents on the dollar.

20 And the ad hoc group represented by Mr. Persons' 21 client is the only impaired class, and they are receiving less 22 than they would otherwise be entitled to. And, in essence, 23 they are -- what they have done, that has allowed funding of 24 the plan to do the things that are being -- the transactions
25 that are contemplated by the plan, paying all unsecured

1 creditors in full, saving the jobs, and continuing the 2 business as a going concern. So that's the way that I view
3 the transaction that is being implemented by the plan, so I do 4 think that facts matter.

5 This company was hopelessly insolvent. The equity 6 here, if you use the strict priority rule, if you look at the 7 liquidation analysis, most unsecured creditors would have 8 received nothing. So, in essence, that's -- the facts do 9 matter, and that's the way that I view the plan.

10 So I'm -- I thought very carefully about Mr.
11 Nguyen's arguments and Ms. Schrage's arguments, and I'm -- and 12 I would be -- if we were writing on a blank slate, I think 13 that Mr. Nguyen's arguments would be fairly persuasive, but 14 we're not writing on a blank slate.

15 Prior to Purdue, the Fifth Circuit did not have non-16 consensual third-party releases. We have been in a situation 17 for years that -- since Pacific Lumber, where there have been 18 no non-consensual third-party releases in the Fifth Circuit.
19 So we have developed and refined a way to determine whether 20 the releases that are included in the plan are consensual, and 21 we've done that by the use of an opt-out mechanism that allows 22 for notice to the parties, actual notice to the parties, and 23 then allows them the opportunity to opt out. That has been 24 refined in cases for a while.

25 So I don't think Purdue really changed anything in

1 the Fifth Circuit as it relates to non-consensual third-party
2 releases because there weren't any. And the Supreme Court was 3 clear in Purdue that -- when they said nothing that we have 4 said should be construed to call into question consensual 5 third-party releases offered in connection with bankruptcy 6 organizations.

7 And having, number one, a mechanism that has been 8 developed over the cases;

9 Number two, having effective service of that 10 mechanism, I think the evidence is uncontroverted based on the 11 declaration of Ms. Calderon, based on the numerous exhibits 12 that were admitted showing service, that service was 13 effective. You know, the nominees, who are the only people 14 that the Debtor had, received it with instructions to forward 15 them. So I believe that the process here worked. And giving 16 the opportunity for the Debtors [sic] to opt out is consistent 17 with having consensual third-party releases.

18 So I don't think that we're necessarily treading on 19 new ground. I think the major goal and the major inquiry that 20 the Court has to make is: Was this a process that was fair 21 and that it was intended to get notice to people, so that they 22 could make a decision?

23 And as Mr. Murtagh indicated, there was no evidence 24 as to why people didn't return it. There was no evidence 25 that, because some of the shareholders returned it without

1 having opted out, that they somehow misunderstood it, misread
2 it, or I don't know what. There is simply no evidence

3 So, in -- kind of in summary, I agree that facts do 4 matter. I think that, based on the facts in this case and the 5 process that was run, that the releases are -- because of the 6 opportunity for all the parties to have opted out, are 7 consensual.

8 And furthermore, that the injunction is -- I don't 9 believe that the injunction is an additional thing that needs
10 to be added in order to make non-consensual releases
11 consensual. I think the injunction is the way that you
12 enforce the mechanism. It's more of a -- it's more a process 13 than it is substance. So I don't think that the use of the 14 injunction to support a consensual release is in any way
15 prohibited by the case law, either by Purdue or in the Fifth 16 Circuit.

17 I believe that the other arguments raised by the 18 trustee, similarly, the gatekeeping function, again, Highland 19 Capital permits the gatekeeping function with respect to the 20 exculpated parties, which, in this case, is only the Debtor, 21 as well as the parties that are released.

22 So, in addressing the scope -- and that I did look 23 at very, very closely, the scope, and I agree with Mr.
24 Murtagh. The only people -- the related parties that would be 25 giving a release would be only parties for whom the people who

1 received notice would have been able to opt out. And the same 2 thing is true for the people who are being provided the 3 releases. So I think that, in terms of the scope of the 4 releases and use of the "related party" definition, I think -- 5 with the limitations that were included in the revised draft, 6 I think those, again, are perfectly appropriate because it's 7 you're only binding people who you could otherwise bind by the 8 people who got notice.

9 With respect to the request to waive the fourteen-10 day period under 3020(e), I believe it's appropriate under the 11 circumstances. This is not a -- you know, a mega case, in 12 terms of billions of dollars. And I think that being able to 13 save on the administrative burden in this case is significant, 14 so I will go ahead and approve that.

15 So, for those reasons, the Court overrules the 16 objections and I will confirm the plan.

17 So is it the order that was submitted at Docket
18 Number 177?

19 MR. MURTAGH: That's correct, Your Honor.

20 (Pause in proceedings)

21 THE COURT: And since Ms. Shriro did not appear,
22 I -- am I to believe that the changes in Paragraph 26 and 29 23 resolved her objections? I think you said that, but I just 24 want to make sure.

25 MR. MURTAGH: That's correct, Your Honor. The

1 modifications for the landlord objection --

2 THE COURT: Paragraphs --

3 MR. MURTAGH: -- those changes --

4 THE COURT: -- 26 --

5 MR. MURTAGH: -- resolve the ---

6 THE COURT: -- and 29.

7 MR. MURTAGH: -- objection.

8 THE COURT: Okay.

9 (Pause in proceedings)

10 THE COURT: Okay. The confirmation order has been 11 signed and sent to docketing.

12 MR. MURTAGH: Thank you, Your Honor.

13 THE COURT: Anything else we can do?

14 MR. MURTAGH: On behalf of the Debtors --

15 (Participants confer)

16 MR. MURTAGH: Oh, one thing.

17 UNIDENTIFIED: Just a very quick housekeeping item.
18 We did have our retention applications on file. The objection
19 deadline for that runs today, and then we'll be filing 20 certificates of no objection for those probably earlier next 21 week.

22 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.

23 Anything else, anyone?

24 MR. MURTAGH: That's it, Your Honor.

25 THE COURT: All right. Thank you very much. You're 1 all excused.
